VACATION WEAR THAT'S STYLISH AND COMFORTABLE

Appropriate and relaxing are key to the wardrobe

By JOY SEWING

ZOE Alexander didn't set out to buy an entire vacation wardrobe...

It started with a new swimsuit, then a cover-up, then sandals. Soon she realized she had everything she needed for a family vacation to Disney World in August.

"Anything chic and comfortable is my friend," said Alexander, who co-authored Disney's Style: Royalious Fashion, Beauty and Lifestyle Secrets from Disney's Child with Tina Knowles (Beyoncé's mom) in 2002.

Alexander said she also invested in summer dresses, leggings, rompers and flats from retailers such as Express, Bloomingdale's and shop repunzel.com.

"Nowadays, you don't want to blow your entire savings on outfits for vacation," said Alexander, who also founded the networking group Divas Who Dine (www.divaswhodine.com).

"But you want clothes, especially flowy things that aren't tight, so you can be relaxed if you gain a few pounds on vacation."

As many vacationers set off for their summer treks, packing an appropriate, fashionable wardrobe is key.

Lightweight, wrinkle-free fabrics are important, as are pieces that can mix and match easily. For warmer climates, dresses are often the most comfortable, versatile option.

Houston native Leah Reed, who lives in New York with her husband Mark Kibbutz and 4-year-old son, keeps it simple for her yearly vacation to Kenya.

This year, she bought a few T-shirts for day and evening and a pair of lightweight Paige Denim white jeans. She travels with J.Crew and American Apparel T-shirts, but doesn't pack jackets or cardigans. Instead, she opts to buy colorful African scarves that make fashionable coverups.

"I never pack high heels," she said. "I want to be comfortable and chic."

HOT PICK PUT A RING ON IT

SINGLE ladies everywhere were shouting "Put a ring on it!" when Beyoncé belted out her chart-topping anthem on her I Am...Sasha Fierce CD in 2008. Now, the singer is doing just that with the Beyoncé Heat Solid Perfume Ring, $35, at Macy's.

The ring, a companion to Beyoncé's celebrity scent, Heat, offers a fun new way to wear the perfume. Heat brought in $3 million in sales between early February and early March and is currently one of the highest-grossing celebrity fragrances.

And for guys, Beyoncé's perfume ring won't break the bank.
